

Ernst & Young Student Assistant Suite Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

On September 26, 2011, The Fisher School of Accounting and Ernst & Young held a ribbon cutting ceremony as the Student Assistant Suite located in Gerson 125 was honored with Ernst & Young's name. Ernst & Young has generously donated money to support the Student Assistant program in Gerson Hall.

Sean Richards, an Audit Partner for Ernst & Young in the Atlanta office, said "Ernst & Young is proud to dedicate the Student Assistant Suite in Gerson Hall. Our alumni are grateful for the education they received in the Fisher School of Accounting, so we wanted to show our support of the school in a visible way that benefits current and future students."

Sean Richards (left) and Gary McGill cut the ribbon to the Ernst & Young Student Assistant Suite in Gerson Hall during the dedication ceremony.

Dr. McGill, Director of the Fisher School of Accounting, noted how important it is for the school to get outside funding so that current and future students are able to get the most out of their education. Dr. McGill said "Ernst & Young has long been a generous supporter of the Fisher School with their time and money. The naming of the E&Y Student Assistant Suite represents the support of our Student Assistant program with a $500,000 gift, which aids both our graduate students serving as assistants and the many students whom they help throughout the semester."